

MR. OKOLI

INT. PLUSH OFFICE BUILDING - OTUNBA'S OFFICE - LATER

OTUNBA and MR. OKOLI, the MR. OKOLI are engrossed, peering at the computer in front of OTUNBA. The latter frowns.

OTUNBA

Are you sure?

MR. OKOLI

Absolutely. I won't come to you without verifying.

OTUNBA

So what're we talking about?

MR. OKOLI

At the moment, it's more like moving monies all over the place. Assets are also being depreciated whilst even though they still have considerable value.

OTUNBA

And you think it's deliberate?

MR. OKOLI

Oh, it's deliberate, sir. It's crafty. They're testing the waters to see if their activity has attracted attention. Any premature reaction, then it'll just be a case of - oh, the money's there, it was just in a different account! No crime committed.

OTUNBA

My God, Gabriel, d'you know whose responsible?

MR. OKOLI

I'm not sure, it's too early to say. I'm going to initiate some forensic accounting protocols on all our accounts and assets. I'll use our scheduled internal audits as cover. But whatever's happening, it's deliberate, and it's intended to take a lot of money.

OTUNBA

You're sure we shouldn't call the police?

MR. OKOLI

We don't have proof of wrongdoing yet. We have to watch and wait. We'll catch them. Don't worry.